

American Community's Preferred Provider Networks

Your American Community identification card identifies you as a PPO policyholder and shows which PPO network covers you in your state of residence. Call the network listed on your identification card for more information about doctors, specialists, urgent care centers, and hospitals in your area.

American Community contracts with the most extensive preferred provider networks in each state so that we can offer you the best healthcare choices available. We choose networks that provide the most complete coverage of each state so that you can keep your healthcare costs down by using a preferred provider.

Links to the preferred provider networks are available on the American Community website; www.american-community.com. Most of our network partners publish online directories of their participating physicians and medical facilities.

FIRST HEALTH NETWORK

First Health Network is a nationwide network of providers – hospitals, physicians and other services – that provides access to medical care at substantial savings when away from home. The network includes approximately 500,000 physicians and other outpatient care providers and approximately 5,000 hospitals, with coverage in all 50 states, District of Columbia and Puerto Rico.

First Health Network is also ideal for policyholders who live outside of the state where their policy was issued for part of the year or for families with children attending school out of state.

To use the First Health Network, simply call the toll-free number on your ID card and ask for a provider near you.

For medical emergencies while away from home, go immediately to the nearest hospital. If the hospital is a First Health Network contracted facility, you will receive the network level of benefits. If your hospital is not First Health Network contracted, your claim will be paid at the non-network rate (network rate in Illinois and Nebraska).
